VARK Learning Styles

The school conducts the VARK learning style questionnaire to analyse student's preferred style of learning and customises lesson plans to address student's learning needs.

Information on VARK Learning Styles:

VARK began in 1987. The publication that launched VARK was:

Title: Not Another Inventory, Rather a Catalyst for Reflection

Published in: To Improve the Academy, Vol. 11, 1992, Page 137.

Authors: Neil D. Fleming and Colleen Mills both at Lincoln University, Canterbury, New Zealand

The acronym VARK stands for Visual, Aural, Read/write, and Kinaesthetic sensory modalities refers to the different learning styles we as humans have when learning new information. Individuals are identified by the style they identify with the most when learning. Fleming and Mills (1992) suggested four modalities that seemed to reflect the experiences of the students and teachers. Although there is some overlap between them they are defined as follows.

Visual (V):

This preference includes the depiction of information in charts, graphs, flow charts, and all the symbolic arrows, circles, hierarchies and other devices that teachers use to represent what might have been presented in words. Layout, whitespace, headings, patterns, designs and colour are important in establishing meaning. Learners with a strong visual preference are more aware of their immediate environment and their place in space.

Aural (A):

This perceptual mode describes a preference for information that is spoken or heard. Learners with this modality report that they learn best from discussion, oral feedback, email, cell phone chat, texting, discussion boards, oral presentations, classes, tutorials, and talking with other students and teachers.

Read/Write (R):

This preference is for information displayed as words either read or written. Typically, it means those who prefer textbooks. Not surprisingly, many academics and high-achieving learners have a strong preference for this modality.

These learners place importance on precision in language and are keen to use quotes, lists, texts, books and manuals. They have a strong reverence for words.

Kinesthetic (K):

By definition, this modality refers to the “perceptual preference related to the use of experience and practice (simulated or real).” Although such an experience may use other modalities, the key part of any definition is that the learner is connected to reality, “either through experience, example, practice or simulation,”

How Parents can use VARK learning model to help their child?

1. Observe and understand your child's predominant style of learning in depth
2. Create a pool of resources to support your child's learning to motivate. If the child prefers reading, have a library of books for his/her reading
3. Collaborate with the teacher to explore ways of engaging the child and create a stimulating environment.
4. The child can have a combination of two to three learning styles so do not limit your resources to one particular style
5. Support the child to be self-independent and self-reliant.

C.N.M. SCHOOL & ND. PAREKH PRE-PRIMARY SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

The Parent-Teacher Association was set up in 1999 with the following objectives:

- To promote, maintain and develop opportunities for meetings and contact between parents and teachers and among parents themselves.
- To establish a channel of communication and exchange of view-points of both parents and teachers on matters concerning the education and development of the students.
- To improve and develop better facilities for students.
- To organize debates, seminars, group discussions and symposiums on topic connected with the education and development of the students.
- To organize functions and get-together of parents, teachers, and students. To celebrate various Indian festivals and other occasions with a view to imbibe and promote Indian culture and tradition amongst the students.
- To establish and maintain funds for awarding scholarships and prizes etc. to deserving students of the school.
- To co-operate with organizations having similar objectives.
- To take, in general, such steps as may be incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objectives.
- To undertake such activities as may be appropriate for encouraging students to achieve excellence in the field of education, sports, social services, etc. and organize functions/events to felicitate the students for their achievements.
- To provide financial assistance to deserving educational institutions for establishing new facilities or upgrading the existing ones.

Parents and teachers together play a very important role in shaping the students into good human beings. Therefore, the school expects whole hearted co-operation from the parents.

OUR HOUSE SYSTEM

When a child is born, its world is within the confines of its house.

As the child grows, the whole of the Earth becomes its home.

It is then, that the child begins to look beyond the Earth.

To our ancestors, the sky was the abode of Gods.

They thought that the stars and the planets possessed mysterious powers that shaped their destiny.

We at C.N.M.S. have therefore chosen to name the houses based upon the planets.
